MFF Video: Posters

The main goal of this website is to promote myself and my work as an artist in various fields, including both successful and unsuccessful projects. The overarching concept of my 30 MFF video was to capture the diverse designs of posters in the NYUAD Arts Center. While many departments, students, and professors use these posters for promotion, they also serve as art in some sense, as imagining the NYUAD walls without them feels daunting and empty.

When browsing through the W3 CSS templates, I aimed to find a sleek style website with a black, white, and gray color palette. I found one that coincidentally resembled the wireframe I submitted earlier, which was a plus. I appreciated the color palette and chose not to make many changes in terms of aesthetics. However, I rearranged the sections to make it more personalized, including a portrait display, an "about me" section, photography, video, and a contact information section.

Regarding styling, I didn't feel the need to change much in terms of color and appearance, but I included a CSS file that would allow me to make adjustments in the future if necessary.

The difficulty I faced primarily stemmed from the JavaScript file. As a beginner, figuring things out was challenging. I would love to expand my knowledge in that area and update my website accordingly. I really wanted to implement a picture carousel, but understanding the code proved to be difficult.
